

FRIDAY OCTOBER 7. 1743.

Frankfort, October 3.

Since William of Hesse-Cassel, who return'd hither lately from the Baths of Aix la Chapelle, confers frequently with his Imperial Majesty, and with his Ministers, in order to engage them, if possible, to accept of the Terms proposed by the Allies. It is not easy to say in what Situation these Negotiations are at present; only thus much is certain, that the Distresses of his Imperial Majesty have rather heightened, than lessen'd the Respect that is paid to him. All the Princes of the Empire express the greatest Concern at seeing himself, and his Affairs, in such a Situation; but whether this Concern of theirs will engage them to enter into the new Plan, that is said to be form'd by a certain Court, for assembling an Imperial Army under his Authority, for the Expulsion of Foreigners, and restoring the Tranquillity of the Empire, is not a little dubious; nay some People go so far, as to say it is a Story calculated by this Court, purely to amuse the World, and to procure, if possible, better Terms for the Queen of Hungary.

Berlin, October 3. Since his Majesty's Return to this Capital, some Negotiations have been carried on of very great Importance; Baron Spon, the Imperial Minister, is extremely well received, and has frequent Conferences with his Majesty, who treats him with peculiar Respect. It is generally thought here, that the King will demand Satisfaction, as well as the Czarina, for the Conduct of the Marquis de Botta; the rather, because in all his Negotiations with the Conspirators, that Minister never once pretended to promise any thing in the Name of the Queen his Mistress, but insisted always on the Interest of the King of Prussia; alledging, that he should be very soon able to obtain Succours from that Court, and assuring them, that he would not fail of soliciting them; tho' his Majesty never had the least Concern with the Marquis de Botta, or even conferr'd with him, but in Publick, on the Affairs of Russia.

Dresden, October 4. We have received, lately, from Count Oginski, his Polish Majesty's Minister at the Court of Petersburg, a very ample Account of the late Conspiracy, which appears to be a Thing of much greater Weight than was at first imagined. The Design was to restore the Emperor John; but, it is said, that his Mother was not to be Regent, as formerly. It is, however, certain, that this Business was in no great Forwardness, but depended entirely on the Efforts which the Conspirators expected would be made by the Marquis de Botta in their Favour; who, if their Depositions are to be believed, was the sole Author of this Affair, which was discovered in the oddest Manner in the World. The French Minister, it seems, had a Suspicion, that the Forces on the Frontiers of Courland might be employ'd against the King of Prussia, and therefore desired some Friends of his at Court, to inquire into that Matter. Now the Conspirators depending entirely on a War with Prussia, and supposing the French Minister did not speak without good Intelligence, grew extreme alert thereupon, and intimated, that if the Empress did employ Troops against that Potentate, a new Scene might possibly open. These unguarded Expressions gave Occasion to strict Enquiries, which quickly ended in discovering a Cabinet of Papers, which laid open the whole Affair. It is observed, that all who were very intimate with the Marquis de Botta, during his Residence at this Court, are look'd upon very coldly; and this is said to have disgust'd a certain Foreign Minister to such a Degree, that he very rarely goes to Court at all. The Conduct of the Queen of Hungary, with respect to the Marquis de Botta, will throw more Light upon this Affair, than can be otherwise had; but, in the mean while, it is observable, that the Czarina's Manifesto, and Count Oginski's Letter, have made great Impressions here; and, as we are informed, on several German Courts.

THE Elements of ALGEBRA, in a New and Easy Method, with their Use and Application, in the Solution of a great Variety of Arithmetical and Geometrical Questions, by General and Universal Rules. To which is prefixed, An Introduction containing a succinct History of this Science.

By Mr. NATHANIEL HAMMOND, of the Bank.

Extract from the Account of this Book in the Works of the Learned.

'The World has long complained of the Want of a proper Introduction to Algebra. Some are so very concise, as if they were contrived not to teach but introduce a Teacher; others again are larger, but worse with so little Condescension to the Understandings of such as are altogether unacquainted with the Science, that they are of very little Use to those who are most inclined to make use of them. Whence it comes to pass, that few find it practicable to make any Progress in Algebra without a Master, tho' certainly the Science in itself is far from surpassing a clear Head, and a tolerable Understanding.

'The Design of this Treatise, which is of a reasonable Bulk, and which contains nothing which is not solid, and to the Purpose, is to assist such as are engaged in teaching Algebra with a regular Method, and a large Stock of Examples; so that their Scholars may find Employment in their Absence; and to enable such as live in Country-Places, and must consequently want all other Tutors, except Books, to acquire such a Skill in this Science, as may enable them to spend a Portion of their Time agreeably in the Cultivation of their better Parts, and in rendering a natural Method of enquiring after Truth habitual.

'The Treatise begins with a copious Explication of the Fundamental Principles of the Art, and of the Signs and Method of Notation used therein. The Author then proceeds to the several Rules, explaining them carefully and copiously in all their various Cases, so that with a moderate Attention it is simply impossible for a Person, who desires to be Master of Algebra, to miss of his End.

'We never find this Writer advancing any thing out of its proper Place, or burdening the Mind of his Scholar with Rules, before they become necessary: He professes to have imitated the judicious Euclid in this Respect; and he has done it with equal Art and Felicity. By this means he has delivered the young Student in Algebra from that which is usually the most fatiguing Part of the Science, viz. The Doctrine of Surds, in the Manner in which it is usually taught. By the same Means he leads his Reader directly to Equations; and, by shewing him the Profit he will reap from this Science, encourages him to overcome all its Difficulties. But having thus laid a strong and rational Foundation, he moves more slowly through the rest of his Work, that whoever follows him, may be obliged to become Master of every Branch of the Art, so as to be a complete Algebraist, before he quits his Book, and not a Smatterer.

'Quadratic Equations, and the Art of managing Converging Series, the admirable Invention of the incomparable Newton, are here so clearly explained, and their several Cases so plainly set down, and so thoroughly explicated, that it may be truly said, there are no where else such Instructions to be met with. At the Close of the Book, we find abundance of Observations, necessary for enlightening such Minds as are willing to proceed still farther in analytic Discoveries; so that considering the Compass of this Work, and that too is very moderate, it is as complete as possibly can be expected: And he who is thoroughly versed in it, will find no great Difficulties, when he proceeds to sublimer Studies. The Language is plain and natural, the Book is more copious than any other in Examples, and the Illustrations of them are so full and clear, that it is impossible to mistake their Meaning.
